DCSS to Host Free Math Meetings for Parents

In an effort to equip parents with knowledge of the state-mandated math curriculum, DeKalb County School System will host Let's Talk about K-12 Mathematics, A Morning with Parents. This series of weekend community meetings will be made available in concurrent sessions tailored for parents of elementary, middle and high school students. The school district is also inviting community members and concerned citizens to take part in the informational meetings.

Let's Talk about K-12 Mathematics will offer parents a wealth of information to learn about the Georgia Performance standards in mathematics. Sessions will also give participants the opportunity to view in detail math textbooks, view and access parent resource websites as well as demo math assessments.

Let's Talk about K-12 Mathematics will additionally feature a continental breakfast, an opening speaker, closing session and door prizes. These Saturday sessions will be at no cost to parents or participants. Those interested in attending are encouraged to register at <http://www.surveymonkey.com/s/LDGRYYF>.
